Rebirth

- ❖ The Renaissance period was a time of social and cultural revival. Thinkers, poets, musicians, artists, architects, and others sought to bring ancient Greco-Roman ideas into their own time.
- ❖ With this renewed attention to classicism, we also see a shift of focus toward the human as well as matters of the here and now, rather than with the afterlife.
- ❖ For our purposes, the Renaissance was also a time of huge growth in music, with new compositions, forms, instruments, and techniques emerging.

Timeline of Events

- ❖ Around 1450 Johannes Gutenberg invents the movable-type printing press
 - ❖ Around 1501 Italian printer Ottaviano Petrucci begins collecting and printing polyphonic music, including chansons, masses, and lute music
- ❖ In 1453 the Eastern See of the Holy Roman Empire in Constantinople falls
 - ❖ Anyone know the They Might Be Giants song?
- ❖ In 1492 Christopher Columbus discovers "the new world"
- ❖ On October 31, 1517 Martin Luther nails his 95 theses to the door of the Wittenberg church, initiating the Protestant Reformation
- ❖ January 1, 1524 the so-called Peasants' Revolt begins

What is unique about Renaissance music?

- ❖ New development of modes or "tones" (see Early Music Sources YouTube video on "Modes in the 16th and 17th Centuries" for more)
 - ❖ "Many have written about the formation and recognition of the modes, but one is confusingly different from another; and for this reason many cannot perceive in what mode a composition might be, when seeing it, and much less when only hearing it" (Camillo Angleria, Regola di Contrapunto, 1622)
- ❖ New use of major and minor thirds and thus triads
 - ❖ Moves us closer toward modern harmonic concepts of "major" and "minor" keys
- ❖ Influence of vocal music with new emphasis on making the text clear and understandable to the listener
 - ❖ Vernacular language texts become much more central
- ❖ Social Dances and Dance Music
 - ❖ Courtly dances but also countryside dances
- ❖ New instrumental idioms
 - ❖ Toccata for the keyboard; fantasia and ricercare for the lute

Instruments

- ❖ Lute
 - ❖ 6 strings in courses (unisons) but with a single string for the first or highest string (the "chanterelle")
 - ❖ Large pear-shape back
 - ❖ Tuning: GCFADG
- ❖ Vihuela de mano (or vihuela for short)
 - ❖ Smaller body than the lute, with a shape more similar to the modern guitar
 - ❖ Same number of strings and tuning as the lute, but pitch varied
- ❖ Four-string Renaissance guitar
 - ❖ Very little repertoire survives for this instrument but it is tuned the same as the top four strings of the modern guitar. (Thus, if you have a baritone ukulele, you can play all of the music written for this instrument directly!)

Terceramente se ha de templar la vihuela por puntos de canto desta manera: Despues de subida la prima en la vihuela ta alto como arriba se dicho: templese la segunda: que este quatro puntos de baxo la prima. Despues templese la tercera que este quatro puntos de baxo la segunda. Y la quarta que este quatro puntos de baxo la tercera. Y la quinta que este quatro puntos de baxo la quarta. Y la sexta que este quatro puntos de baxo la quinta. Y para mejor inteligencia sobre las cuerdas de la presente vihuela ballareys la entonacion que cada una de las cuerdas ha de tener.

La mi / de la prima a la segunda: quiere dezir. Que la segunda este quatro puntos de baxo que la prima.

La mi / de la segunda a la tercera. Quiere dezir: que la tercera este quatro puntos de baxo que la segunda.

Social Dance and the Lute

Dance

Dances:

- Saltarello
- Spagnoletto
- Pavana
- Alman
- Branle
- Passamezzo
- Gagliarda
- Volta
- Jig / Gigue
- Tourdion
- Piva
- etc.

Dances

- ❖ Strong repeatable rhythmic patterns, including syncopations and hemiolas
- ❖ Heavy use of chords and chord progressions — some dances feature this more than others, like the Pavana and the Alman
- ❖ Dances were often grouped in pairs or in threes
 - ❖ For instance, the pavana (a duple meter dance) was often followed by the gagliarda (triple meter dance) in social dances. Thus, composers also frequently grouped them together.

Pavana

- ❖ Pavana was a slow processional dance from Padua in Italy.
- ❖ It features two large beats per measure
- ❖ This was a dance for two partners, each of whom would take slow, dignified steps together, interrupted by moments of pause.
- ❖ We can see this same kind of motion in Luis de Milan's "Pavana No.1" from his 1536 instructional treatise for the vihuela de mano, El Maestro:

Vocal Influence in Lute Music

Song

New genres: Madrigal, French chanson, fantasia, ricercare, and toccata

Canción del Emperador

- ❖ Luis de Narváez
- ❖ Intabulation of the French chanson, Mille regretz by Josquin des Prez (~1450-1521).
 - ❖ Said to be one of Charles V's favorite songs (thus the "song of the emperor")
 - ❖ Really an intabulation with divisions / diminutions

The image shows a musical score for the piece 'Mille regretz' by Josquin des Prez, performed by the Hilliard Ensemble. The score is presented on four staves, each with a vocal line and its corresponding lyrics in French. The lyrics are: 'dou - lou - reu - se Qu'on - me ver - ra brief mes jours', 'dou - lou - reu - se Qu'on me ver - ra', '8 et pai - ne dou - lou - reu - se Qu'on me ver -', and 'et pai - ne dou - lou - reu - se Qu'on me ver - -ra'. The number '21' is written above the first staff, and the number '8' is written below the third staff. The score is set against a black background.

Deloipbin. 45

The image shows two staves of lute tablature. Above the first staff are seven rhythmic flags, and above the second staff are four. The notation uses letters (z, 4, 3, 5) and circles on a six-line staff to represent fret positions and rhythmic values. The first staff contains 7 measures, and the second staff contains 5 measures.

3lle regre.

The image shows a page from a musical manuscript. At the top, there is a title 'Libro tercero.' with a decorative flourish. Below the title, there are three systems of musical notation. The first system consists of a vocal line with lyrics and a vihuela line with tablature. The lyrics are: 'En la quinta en / el tercer traste esta / la clausura de la cant. / En la tercera e / el primer traste esta / la clausura de la cant.' The second system continues the tablature. The third system also continues the tablature. There are various musical symbols, including clefs, notes, and tablature characters (numbers 0-5) on the strings. There are also some decorative flourishes and a large '3' symbol in the first system.

New Instrumental idioms the Lute

The Fantasia

El Arte de Tañer la Fantasia

- ❖ As the vihuela scholar John Griffiths says, "The fantasia was the pinnacle of Renaissance instrumental music."
- ❖ In the first quarter of the 16th-century the ricercare and fantasia were free and spontaneous improvisations. Examples of these are by Francesco Spinacino (printed by Ottaviano Petrucci in what is probably the very first printed lute music in 1507).
 - ❖ Tastar de corde — testing the strings
- ❖ Writers like Tomás de Sancta Maria wrote an entire treatise dedicated to what he called the "arte de tañer fantasia" but the whole book is really focused not on the playing but on the composition of the fantasy through independent polyphonic lines with imitation.
- ❖ These gradually transformed during the middle of the century into a more structurally coherent polyphonic composition that mimicked complex vocal compositions like the motet.
- ❖ These more developed fantasias and ricercari anticipate the baroque fugue.

Francesco da Milano, Fantasia "La Compagna"

- ❖ Monothematic fantasia
 - ❖ Borrows theme from "Fantasia Ness 33": mi-fa-mi
 - ❖ So is often called a "parody" (like older "parody masses"—not parodies, but simply borrowing and reusing material).
- ❖ Imitative counterpoint in three voices

L'Entrée

A handwritten musical score for a piece titled "L'Entrée". The score is written on a white rectangular background and consists of five systems of music. Each system includes a vocal line (top staff) and a lute accompaniment (bottom staff). The vocal line uses a treble clef and contains various note values, including minims, crotchets, and quavers, with some notes marked with a fermata. The lute accompaniment uses a lute clef (a C-clef on the fifth line) and contains rhythmic figures and chordal structures, often indicated by numbers 0-5 on the staff lines. The piece concludes with a double bar line. The background of the page features a decorative border with illustrations of a lion's head, a lute, a drum, a red crab-like creature, and a blue crab-like creature. At the bottom, there are illustrations of several dogs in a landscape.
